Urges Legislators to Give It 'Most Careful Consideration'

Washington—President Roosevelt sent to congress today, without recommendation other than for "most careful consideration," Hungary's proposal for settlement of its debt to the United States.

Hungary offered last Feb. 23 to pay the debt, arising from post-war relief aid, "100 cents on the dollar," but asked to be freed of obligations to pay any interest.

The original debt was $1,685,000. Hungary was paid $478,000 in principal and interest and proposed that this be deducted, leaving the total obligation $1,207,000, to be paid in 30 annual, non-interest-bearing installments.

Mr. Roosevelt told congress: "I believe the proposals of the Hungarian government should receive the most careful consideration of the congress. They represent a noteworthy wish and effort of the Hungarian government to meet its obligations to this government."

Won't Set Precedent
The president apparently having in mind the opposition some congressmen have expressed to the Hungarian debt proposal on the grounds it would serve as a precedent for larger debtors, added:

"It has of course been the consistent policy of the United States to consider each debt in the light of the circumstances of the debtor government and it is with this in view that the Hungarian communication is transmitted to the congress."

Treasury officials have estimated that the principle of Hungary's proposal, if applied to all governmental debtors to this country, would mean a scaling down of the indebtedness from approximately $12,600,000,000 to $7,500,000,000.

The Hungarian debt was contracted May, 1920, through the sale of flour by the United States to famished, post-war Hungary.

ference of premiers and foreign ministers, held in Paris, Nov. 29, 1917, to effect a more complete coordination of the activities of the entente co-belligerents for the prosecution of the war.

He again represented the president in the supreme war council at Versailles, Dec. 1, 1917, and on Oct. 17, 1938, he was designated to act as the United States in the negotiation of an armistice with the central powers.

Colonel House had been in semi-retirement in recent years. Colonel House was first reported seriously ill of pleurisy on March 4 by Dr. Paul B. Sheldon, his personal physician. Since then he had been confined to his home, where he died.

Still keen and observant despite his declining years, Colonel House in one of his last interviews asserted flatly that President Roosevelt would not be a candidate for a third term.

For Strong Navy
The aged peace-maker also said America's best chance of remaining out of any future world conflict lay in a strong merchant marine and a powerful navy.

He was the last survivor of the American signatories of the treaty of Versailles.

To the general public, Colonel House was something of a man of mystery. He held international secrets and wielded tremendous power as Wilson's closest confidant during the war years and throughout the peace negotiations.

A native of frontier Texas, who, as a boy, saw shooting affrays in the streets of Houston, he became the intimate of the world's greatest personages from 1914 to 1918, including such figures as Kaiser Wilhelm, Clemens, Lloyd George and King Albert of Belgium.

Prepare Extensive Recruiting Drive For U. S. to be Used in Event of War

Washington—Fifty active and reserve army, navy and marine officers joined in preparations today for the most extensive recruiting campaign in the nation's history, but it will be used only in event of war.

The program is aimed at obtaining 300,000 volunteers within 30 days in contrast to the 95,000 who enlisted in the first month after American entrance in the World war.

The officers, representing 14 eastern states and Puerto Rico, also were studying a selective service system modeled after that of 1917-18, which the volunteer recruiting campaign would supplement.

Details of the machinery to mobilize manpower quickly in the event of another conflict have been worked out in the last 19 years—ever since General John J. Pershing returned from France to become chief of staff.

In contrast with the secrecy that traditionally surrounds military plans, American M-day (mobilization day) industrial and personnel objectives are not secret. The latter are:

to take a stand on the west bank of the river, about three miles from Fraga.

Two hundred insurgent planes raked the positions with machine-guns and bombs, and Moroccan and Navarrese infantry took the ground on the first charge. Government troops fled back across the river and dynamited the principal Fraga bridge, leaving a thousand of their own men trapped.

Insurgent columns seized the secondary bridges, occupied a number of villages roundabout, and surrounded Fraga. Occupation was not at once completed, however, and troops skirted the town to push on toward Lerida—city of a little less than 50,000 with textiles as one of its chief industries.

Air raiders began a series of attacks. Insurgent military advisers said the city was without sizeable defenses and predicted it would fall easily.

The next major encounter, insurgent military strategists said, would be between Lerida and Barcelona and would be "decisive."

ITALIAN WARNING
Rome—Italy in effect today told France to keep hands off Spain while Italian troops go forward in the insurgent advance towards the Mediterranean.

Official quarters acknowledged their concern over the possibility Premier Leon Blum's government might go to the aid of embattled Catalonia.

The Italian foreign office organ, Informazione, diplomatically, yesterday published a statement Italy was "following with greatest attention the campaign of French leftists for intervention in Spain."

Newspapers, meanwhile, gave great prominence to an official account of the part Italians were playing in the current insurgent offensive. A communique announced Italian losses in Spain since March 9 were 29 officers and 253 men killed, 122 officers and 1,349 men wounded, and 33 missing.

FRANCO TAKES FRAGA
With the Spanish Insurgents in Catalonia—(U)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces today occupied Fraga, "gateway to Catalonia," and advanced northeast along the main highway toward Lerida and Barcelona.

Lerida, a textile manufacturing city, lies 15 miles from Fraga—both are within Catalonia—and Barcelona is on the coast 80 miles to the east of Lerida.

The movement of heavy artillery to help insurgent airmen hammer Lerida's defenses awaited only the construction of pontoon bridges across the Cinca river, just west of Fraga. The principal bridge across the stream had been dynamited by retreating government forces.

(Dispatches to Hondary said mechanized units supported by squadrons of bombing planes were driving toward Lerida. The planes blazed a path through hastily dug defense works.)

American Cheese Production and Sale are Higher

February Figures Show Increase Compared With January

Chicago—(U)—A counter-seasonal expansion occurred in February over January in the manufacture and sale of American cheese in Wisconsin, and the volumes were the largest since last October, the research and statistics department of the Federal Reserve bank at Chicago reported today in an analysis of business conditions for the Seventh federal district, including Wisconsin.

Cheese production in the state totaled 8 per cent more than in January and 11 per cent heavier than that of a year ago or in the 1928-37 February average.

During the first three weeks of March production continued well above the February distribution of the commodity from Wisconsin. Primary markets rose 3 per cent above the January amount, 6 per cent over the February, 1937, amount, and almost equalled the 10-year average for the month.

Trend of Prices
United States inventories of cheese fell somewhat less than seasonally from Feb. 1 to March 1 and, although they remained well below stocks of a year earlier, their excess over the 1933-37 average widened to 12 million pounds. After pronounced weakness in January and early February, cheese prices ruled steady through the first two weeks of March, but were off slightly in the third week.

Production and distribution of creamery butter in the Seventh district conformed to seasonal trend during February.

Butter manufacture totaled 2 per cent lower than in January and 10 per cent less than the 1928-37 average, but was 10 per cent higher than the make for February, 1937.

Tonnage Comparison
The tonnage sold in the district aggregated 1 per cent lower than in January, although it was 10 per cent higher than in February, 1937, and 5 per cent above the 10 year average.

For the United States, production of the commodity showed about the same trend as in the seventh district, except that it almost equalled the average for the month.

By March 1, United States inventories of creamery butter had declined 10 million pounds from a month earlier—eight million pounds less than would be seasonally expected. They totaled four million pounds over the 1933-37 average, exceeding slightly stocks of March 1, 1937. Bolstered considerably by government purchases, butter prices held steady from mid-February through the first three weeks of March.

New State Cabinet Drawing Attention of Other States

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Work of a new official group conceived by Governor LaFollette is receiving attention in the state capital.

It is the governor's administrative cabinet, a by-product of his now well known capital reorganization program. Meeting weekly to discuss and to act upon joint problems, and consisting of all the most important administrative officers in the state government, the cabinet closely resembles that which aids the White House, although it is not statutory.

It is another indication of the trend toward centralization in modern government. As the governor himself explains it, "each department now has a feeling of being part of a whole organization, instead of the feeling that each commission is paddling its own canoe."

That the cabinet idea, which was doubtless suggested by the chief executive's University of Wisconsin advisors, may produce beneficial results was suggested this week when its action in designing a new and simplified state income tax form of one page met with general approbation.

While in many quarters today the delegation of authority to central agencies such as the governor's cabinet is feared and distrusted, Governor LaFollette explains that the increasing interdependence of today's society requires new and greater governmental interferences, and that central authority, checked as always by the electorate, must meet the many problems facing modern citizens if critical situations are to be avoided.

The cabinet system has attracted considerable attention out of the state, especially among the academic reformists who have long advocated modernization of administrative machinery in state capitals.

Japanese Sponsor New Government In Nanking Zone

Chinese Personnel in Charge but Under Nipponese Domination

Shanghai—(U)—A new government, with Chinese personnel, but dominated by Japan, was set up today at Nanking—former capital of the Chinese nationalist regime—to replace Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's administration.

The new government was described by its sponsors as the "reformed government of the republic of China."

Japan last week ordered the creation of such a government at Nanking "under the umbrella" of the similar North China regime recently established at Peiping.

Inauguration of the Nanking government was announced here through a manifesto signed by Liang Hung-Tze, chairman of the executive yuan.

Liang Hung-Tze, whose post is equivalent to that of premier, formerly was secretary general under Tuan Chi-Jui, provisional chief executive of China in 1924 and 1925.

Respect Foreign Rights
He issued a statement saying the new government would respect "all just and vested foreign rights" but, hereafter, would not recognize any contracts or treaties made by the national (Chiang) government at Hankow or by Chinese provincial governments with foreign powers.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has been operating the nationalist government at Hankow while carrying on the fight against the Japanese invaders. He moved his government to Hankow before Nanking's capture Dec. 11, 1937. (Dispatches from Hankow said Chinese troops had recaptured Lincheng, strategic south Shantung province city on the Tientsin-Pukow railway.)

(Chinese military leaders said they were convinced the Japanese offensive along the railway against Suchow had been stopped. Suchow, south of Lincheng, is the junction city where the Tientsin-Pukow line crosses the vital east-west Lungai railway.)

Cut Jap Retreat
(The Chinese said they cut Japanese lines of retreat in so many places around Lincheng that the invaders were forced to break ranks and take to the hills, abandoning communications established at great cost in the last two weeks' severe fighting.)

(That the Japanese have been suffering heavy losses in recent battles, many of which have resulted in setbacks, was evidenced by the arrival in Shanghai of 40 truck loads of dead soldiers. Military observers estimated there were 600 corpses in the conveyer.)

The finance minister of the new Nanking regime is Chen Chin Tao, former chairman of the national currency reform commission. A graduate of Columbia and Yale universities, he served as vice minister of finance in the Manchou government just before the 1911 revolution.

Later he was minister of finance in the first republican government. He held this office again in 1916, until he ran into legal difficulties over embezzlement charges.

15 Convicts are Being Sought in Tennessee Break

38 Escape From Coal Mine But 23 are Recaptured

Petros, Tenn.—(U)—Armed posses poked through tangled underbrush of the Cumberland mountains today in search of 15 convicts, the remaining fugitives of 38 who had blasted to freedom from a prison coal mine.

Prison guards, officers and deputized citizens had orders to "shoot to kill" if necessary. The 23 convicts caught surrendered without resistance.

The men, working in Brushy Mountain mine No. 4, escaped through a 30-foot tunnel yesterday, digging through a soft seam of coal near the surface and then blasting away rock. The dynamite was obtained from a supply in the mine.

Warden Scott Swafford said the escape was discovered at daybreak when guards checked the men out of the mine. Approximately 49 prisoners apparently made no attempt to flee.

Suspected Mutiny

"We suspected mutiny at first," Swafford said, "but finally one of the prisoners said the men had dynamited and dug their way out of the mine."

Swafford said the men entered the mine about 6 p. m. Saturday. E. B. Jones, mine superintendent, said the escape was so cleverly planned and executed that the men met with no resistance. The mine foreman had noticed nothing wrong.

"The 'grapevine' told them when to lay low," Jones said, "and there was nothing suspicious when the foremen were about."

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Mr. Jackson's Opinion

In removing Dr. Morgan the president relied upon an opinion delivered by the Acting Attorney General, Mr. Robert H. Jackson, and in order to get at the main question in this controversy one must go back to Mr. Jackson's opinion. Even a cursory reading of the opinion shows at once that Mr. Jackson was by no means entirely sure of his ground and that to reach a conclusion which upheld the president he had to beg the very question which is in dispute.

The doubts that exist in Mr. Jackson's mind stand out clearly in two places. "I think I may state it as an unassailable proposition," he says, "that any person charged (against Dr. Morgan) is established, the power of removal ought to exist. Furthermore, the Tennessee Valley Authority, being an Executive Agency, performing Executive functions, and therefore in the Executive branch of the government, the power of removal ought to be in the president."

There is far from being the language of a confident man. In fact, it is the over-emphatic language of a very uncertain man. It is evident that Mr. Jackson had two doubts in his mind. He was not at all sure that the T.V.A. is in fact an executive agency. He was not at all sure that the unclear statute of T.V.A. does in fact give the president the power of removal. Being unsure on both points Mr. Jackson had first to assert dogmatically, omitting an attempt to prove it, that the T.V.A. is an executive agency, and then, because the statute is badly drafted, he could not say definitely whether or not the president has the power of removal, but only that he, Mr. Jackson, thinks the president ought to have it.

Provided Three Ways

There is no doubt that the statute is unclear. For it provides three different ways of removing a director of the T.V.A. There is the underlying constitutional power of Congress to impeach and try a director and remove him if the Senate convicts him. There is the special statutory power (Section 4F) to remove him by concurrent resolution of the Senate and the House. There is the special statutory power (Section 6) vested in the president which clearly gives him the right to remove if he thinks the directors are playing politics, and under any reasonable rule of interpretation would give him the right to remove for other kinds of misconduct.

Now if Mr. Jackson is right in claiming that T.V.A. is "an Executive Agency" and not an independent commission, why did Congress provide itself with a special way of removing directors? Mr. Jackson argues that "the legislative history of the Tennessee Valley Authority Act contains no such indications" that Congress thought the directors exercised quasi-legislative or quasi-judicial functions. It seems to me that in providing itself with the power to remove by a shorter and swifter method than impeachment, Congress indicated very emphatically that it did not regard T.V.A. as an ordinary executive agency, and that it did regard the Authority as invested with legislative functions.

Power to Remove is Power to Control Acts

For the power to remove an official is the power to control his acts. The whole executive power of the President is derived from the fact that he can remove executive officials. They are his subordinates because he can remove them. The power to remove is the final attribute of authority, and, therefore, when Congress retained for itself a special power to remove T.V.A. directors, it must be taken, it seems to me, that Mr. Jackson is wrong and that, contrary to his opinion, Congress did regard the agency as quasi-legislative.

So, although the statute itself is not clear, what Congress had in mind is fairly obvious. It regarded T.V.A. as a mixed agency combining legislative and executive functions. Because T.V.A. is a legislative agency Congress insisted upon its own power of removal when in its judgment the directors were not carrying out the legislative will of Congress. And because T.V.A. is also an executive agency, Congress assumed that the President also has the power of removal when there is corruption, inefficiency, or malfeasance, and then added a commandment that he must remove directors if they play politics.

Drops T.V.A. to Status of Executive Agency

If this is correct, then the narrow question in the case of A. E. Morgan versus H. A. Morgan and Lillenthal is whether they have quarreled over a legislative policy or over executive matters.

But we know, do we not, that the fundamental issue between them arises out of a very broad question of public policy, namely, the relation between public enterprise and private enterprise? Yet the President set up his personal tribunal and shaped the issue in such a way that it was narrowed down to very small personal and administrative matters. By this cunning stratagem he removed Dr. Morgan before the big question could be discussed. He deprived Dr. Morgan of his right to be heard adequately on the big question. He cut away the right of Congress to pass on the big question except as an academic issue. And he reduced the T.V.A. to the status of a subordinate executive agency.

He will, I think, come to regret his little triumph, and his discerning friends will wish he had had more wisdom and less smartness, more statesmanship and less show.

Many Varieties Of Flowers Help In Garden Scheme

Annuals are Available to Fit Specific Situations

The hundreds of types and varieties of annuals we see displayed in the seed catalog these days is sometimes confusing to the amateur. And as often as not, he will choose the old favorite petunias, snapdragons, marigolds and cinnias which served him so beautifully last season from sheer habit.

Yet a careful study of the list will vastly improve any garden, for from it can be chosen annuals to fit a specific situation or color scheme, whether the requirement is a subject for a hot dry spot, or for a flower just 8 inches tall and of a certain shade of pink.

Do not neglect to plant the old favorites (although new varieties of them should be investigated), but consider the following and their many cousins:

Datura, or angel's trumpet, is a sub-tropical flower with trumpet-shaped blossoms and a delicate fragrance. It grows well in most climates, but should be started early in a seedbox or flat. Good for bedding, and as a pot plant.

Euphorbia is an interesting flower because of its attractive foliage. Coleus is another foliage plant with brilliantly colored and mottled leaves of a heavy texture.

The annual statice is not only a beautiful flower for garden purposes, but may be dried for winter decoration. Xeranthemum, much simpler to grow than to pronounce, is another everlasting which may be cured for winter use. It has silvery foliage, and attractive pink, white and purple flowers.

Nigella, sometimes called love-in-a-mist, is a shy blue beauty which nestles in a halo of feathery foliage. Easily grown in any garden soil.

The hummamnia or bush escholtzia, member of the poppy family, with its bright sulphur yellow flowers, is excellent for summer color, and is good for cutting. Plant it late when the ground is warm. It is slow getting started but has a long season of bloom.

A real dazzer, which might well be used to accent beds or borders, is the koehia, popularly known as the burning bush because of its fiery red colors. It grows 2½ feet tall and its close-branching habits give it the physical appearance of a small evergreen. It makes a fine colorful low hedge for separating parts of the garden.

Globe amaranth, or gomphrena, come to us from the East Indies, but grows readily in most climates. It has clover-like blossoms in white, flesh, rose and purple colors. Sow seed in late spring in sunny location. Blooms from July until frost. Pick a few to dry.

Most of these annuals can be grown with a minimum of preparation by the amateur. Although they do not take the place of the old sure-fire favorites, they make interesting variety and add much to the pleasure of growing flowers.

President Barrows to Be Toastmaster at Boy Scout Annual Meeting

President Thomas N. Barrows of Lawrence college will be toastmaster at the annual meeting of the valley council of boy scouts which will be held Thursday night in the new Menasha high school gymnasium.

Mowry Smith, Neenah, president of the council, will preside at the meeting at which C. J. Carlson, regional scout chief, will be the principal speaker. More than 400 persons are expected to attend the banquet.

Annual reports will be given at the meeting. Scouts who attended the national jamboree last summer at Washington, D. C., and their parents have been invited to attend. Waldo Friedland, Menasha, is general chairman.

Foresighted Gardeners Will Sow Everlastings

Gardeners with foresight will make plans to sow some of the everlastings this spring. These beautiful flowers, which appear well in the garden and combine with other flowers in bed or border, can be dried, or cured, for use in winter. They are a colorful race, and arrangements for the table and mantel piece can be made which are good winter substitutes for the real thing.

One of the best of such flowers is the strawflower, or helichrysum, a hardy subject with rich blossoms. Its fine double flowers with yellow centers ranging from pure white through light and deep yellow to rich scarlet and crimson is excellent material for garden use.

The globe amaranth, or gomphrena, is another good annual for this purpose. It is bushy in character and has purple clover-like heads which make good garden subjects, and durable winter material for arrangements. Sow them at the end of April or the first of May in the open ground, and they will be a mass of bloom in August.

The annual statice is a flower of this type. It has continuous blooming habits which are invaluable during seasons when color is scarce. Ammobium, or winged everlasting, have silvery white flowers with a yellow disk that grows 2 feet tall.

The popular kypsophila, baby's breath, charming, free-flowering, is another good one to dry for winter's use, as well as for summer cutting material. Acroclium, a daisy-like flower with white and rosy pink blossoms, can be used for this dual purpose. Rhodanthe, a charming annual with everlasting flowers, is another. It should have a light and rich soil, with added plant food, and is valuable as a pot plant.

Drying flowers is simple. Tie them in a bunch and hang in a dry, dark place until thoroughly cured. Usually it is best to cut them when the blossoms are half opened.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

It has come to our attention that the poor condition of the College Avenue resurfacing is becoming something of a Political issue. It seems only fair that we again make public the facts of the case and our stand on the matter.

Over 70% of the property owners petitioned for and 11 aldermen voted for this type of pavement. It was not the work of one man or one department.

The City Council hired the Van Trump Testing Laboratories of Chicago as consulting engineers to test and inspect all material used in the job thereby taking all responsibility away from the City Engineer.

The city is fully protected by a 5 year guarantee. The pavement will be put in first class condition this summer. When work is done under proper weather conditions it will give no further trouble.

Unfavorable weather encountered during laying and alternate freezing and thawing during the winter are responsible for its present condition.

Lawrence College Students Get Aid Under NYA Plan

Fifty-Eight Share in Allotment of $7,830 for Current Year

Aubrey Williams, executive director of the National Youth Administration, has announced that 2,689 students in Wisconsin, including Lawrence college and the Outagamie County Rural Normal school, are receiving assistance this year under the administration's student aid program.

Included in the preliminary list, subject to correction, of institutions participating in the college and graduate aid program are 58 students of Lawrence college with a yearly allotment of $7,830 and 4 students of the normal school with a yearly allotment of $540.

Monthly allotments to Wisconsin educational institutions this year amounted to $31,305, Williams said, and yearly allotments to $279,315.

Reduction

Williams explained that while the quota of students represented a 39 per cent reduction from last year, the actual number of students aided during December, 1937, was only 32.6 per cent less. This was true, he said, because many institutions reduced the average monthly payment of $15 on which quotas were based in order to assist as many students as possible.

December, 1937, preliminary figures showed a total of 55,025 college and graduate students received an average wage of $11.72.

The national total of students receiving assistance, he said, was approximately one-third less than last year because of a substantial decrease in appropriations for the NYA under the 1937 Relief Appropriations act. This year's national quota was 75,993, compared with 124,818 during the 1936-37 school year.

Among the allotments for other Wisconsin institutions are Beloit college, $6,075; Carroll college, $6,075; Marquette university, $26,325; Ripon college, $3,375; St. Robert's college, $2,565; Oakton teachers college, $7,025; University of Wisconsin Extension division, $5,555; and University of Wisconsin $101,925.

Bitter Attack on Roosevelt Bill defeated all major attempts to modify the bill, which would give the president broad powers to reorganize federal agencies.

It also would create a new welfare department in the cabinet, overhaul the civil service, abolish the office of comptroller general, and authorize the president to employ six administrative assistants.

Foes have asserted the bill would concentrate too much authority under the president. Their activities resulted in a hearing before the senate lobby committee, during which an official of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government refused to present subpoenaed records.

"Nothing To Hide"

The official, Edward A. Rumely, said in a radio speech last night: "Because the national committee refused to open its files to unlawful invasion. Senator Minton (chairman of the lobby hearing) says it must have something to hide."

"We have nothing to hide, but we have much to protect—the rights not only of ourselves but the full rights of all American citizens."

The house, now debating the war department appropriation bill, has not considered the general reorganization program, although it approved some parts of it last year.

The next big senate dispute will be over the house-approved tax revision bill, which the finance committee is rewriting. Then will come the billion-dollar naval program.

The house will vote late this week on the senate resolution proposing a congressional investigation into the Tennessee Valley authority. Approval is expected.

subjecting it to license and censorship.

"The liberty of the press is not confined to newspapers and periodicals. It necessarily embraces pamphlets and leaflets. These indeed have been historic weapons in the defense of liberty, as the pamphlets of Thomas Paine and others attest."

Roger Touhy failed in the supreme court in his effort to escape serving a 99-year sentence for the kidnapping of John Factor in Chicago in 1933—a kidnapping which Touhy said was "faked" by the alleged victim himself.

The high court refused to pass upon a judgment of the Illinois Supreme court denying Touhy a writ of habeas corpus.

Touhy and five other men were convicted in the Cook county criminal court in 1934 and sentenced to 99 years in Stateville penitentiary.

The supreme court ruled the national labor relations act was applicable to the Santa Cruz Fruit Packing company of Oakland, Calif., which ships less than 40 per cent of its product into interstate commerce.

SLATED TO DIE

Ralph Hawk, 20, (above) was scheduled to die for the "torch murder" of the mother and sister of his sweetheart. He confessed the killing of Mrs. Max Gelwix and her daughter, Helen, 15, who died in their flaming home at Marion, Pa., on New Year's day, 1937.

State Roads in Good Condition

Some Light Surfaced Highways Have Rough Spots From Spring Break-Up

State trunk highways in the state are in good condition with the exception of the light surfaced roads which are soft and rough in spots due to the spring break-up, according to a report of the state highway commission issued Friday and received this morning by F. R. Appleton, county highway commissioner.

The following detours are in effect: Ashland county, State Trunk Highway 77, Glidden - Hayward road; Dodge county, State Trunk Highway 109, Hustisford-Woodland road; Marinette county, United States Highway 141, Crivitz-Amberg road; Vilas county, United States Highway 45, Eagle River-Conover road.

John Ritter, county road patrol superintendent, was checking condition of the county trunk roads which were temporarily closed last week because of high water which overflowed the Wolf, Shioe and Embassas rivers. The closed roads are expected to be reopened within the next few days.

Get Permits to Build Garage, Remodel House

George Michler, Jr., 1301 E. South River street, was given a permit to remodel his home and build a porch by the city building inspector today. The porch will be of frame construction, and the cost is estimated at $500.

King and Queen Named For Oconto's Carnival

Oconto—(AP)—Robert Burhardt and Eleanor Foley, high school students, were crowned king and queen of the Oconto smelt carnival which opened yesterday with the annual smelt run on the Oconto river.

A crowd estimated up to 10,000 saw a parade featuring floats which depicted preparation and marketing of smelt. Fishermen estimated 125,000 pounds of the fish had been netted up to last night.

That two Little Chute youngsters used unusual means of entertaining themselves Saturday. Standing along old Highway 41, they would hitch-hike a ride to Appleton, and arriving here would immediately start thumb-working for a ride back to Little Chute. In this way they occupied the entire afternoon riding back and forth between the city and village.

That a Hortonville business man was caught trying to "break" into his establishment over the weekend by county police. It was reported that someone was breaking into the place by a person who heard some glass breaking, and the officers immediately went to the establishment and surrounded the place. As one of the officers approached the building from the rear the owner practically walked into the officer's arms. He explained that his wife had the key to the building and that he was trying to open a window to enter. Fearing that someone might think he was trying to break in, he said that when a car went by he would put out the light with which he was working.

Chiropractic Clinic

People are so busy in this mad rush for fame and fortune, they do not live natural lives. Necessity is the mother of invention because of the strain and tension of modern life, the spine is subject to strains and jolts, this in turn brings on abnormalities in remote parts of the body. Chiropractic is a natural science working in harmony with nature to correct conditions in the spine. Are you really as well as you were this time last year? Do you have the energy you used to have, or do you find your daily work an effort that exhausts you? If you are run down, as the saying goes, your nerves have become tensed, your spine is improperly aligned, and you are no longer getting the abundant flow of life giving energy, nature's most precious gift. That is why Chiropractic is so necessary and beneficial. Young and old, men, women and children, all may take this path to health and happiness. Age is not a matter of the calendar. Actually you are as young as you FEEL.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: Is Chiropractic beneficial in acute diseases like bronchitis, pneumonia and pleurisy?

A. W. Answer: Yes. Splendid results are obtained with such cases you have mentioned. They respond very rapidly to Chiropractic. After fifteen years of dealing with the sick I am in a position to know. There have passed under my supervision in this clinic many thousands of sick people, some of whom were given up as hopeless before coming here. This clinic is available upon the service of getting sick people well as quickly as possible, thereby reducing the cost of being sick.

Hortonville Siren Sends Officers on 'Wild Goose Chase'

The blowing of a siren and what they believed to be suspicious actions on part of occupants in the car just ahead of them caused two Appleton motorists to follow the machine bearing a western state license plate from Hortonville to New London about 6 o'clock Saturday night.

Seeing no officers about the motorists then came to Appleton and reported to the sheriff's department and two county motorcycle patrolmen went out to investigate.

After two hours of checking the car in question was found—but it had no siren. The occupants told the officers that they had heard a siren and thought it was the car following them. Some more checking was done and it was then found that the 6 o'clock siren whistle at Hortonville was the cause of the entire affair.

Traffic Deaths Decrease in U. S.

Decline During February For Fourth Consecutive Month

Chicago—(AP)—Automobile traffic fatalities in the United States, for the fourth consecutive month, showed a decrease in February, the National Safety council announced today.

Following an all-time high in 1937 of 39,700 deaths, the council reported safer driving during February brought about a 16 per cent reduction in fatalities compared with February, 1936, and 20 per cent less than January of this year. The council said this encouraging trend in traffic deaths meant a cumulative saving of nearly 1,800 lives since last November when the decline began. There were 2,180 deaths reported for February, 420 less than the corresponding period last year. Deaths in January were 529 less than in January, 1936.

Milwaukee had the lowest death rate for January and February among cities of more than 500,000 population, the council reported. Its rate was 4.0 for each 100,000 population, as compared with an average of 13.0 for its population class. Milwaukee's traffic deaths numbered four in the two months, compared with 14 in the same months in 1936.

Among states reporting noticeable decreases for the two month period were Vermont, 44 per cent; Maryland, 40; Michigan, 39; Oregon, 38; Massachusetts, 37; Wisconsin and Oklahoma, 32; North Carolina, 29; Rhode Island, 27; Connecticut, 25; Nebraska, 23; New York and Indiana, 22.

Series of 9 Township Meetings Is Opened to Discuss Farm Program

Forest Junction—Opening a series of nine township meetings, which are being held throughout Calumet county over a period of 11 days, Henry Heimann, Charles town farmer, representative of the Calumet County Agricultural Conservation association, and A. L. McMahon, agricultural agent of Calumet county, addressed more than 100 town of Brillion farmers at the town hall here Friday evening. Features of the 1938 agricultural program were explained by the speakers.

Acreage allotment cards to be mailed out to the farmers as soon as the county allotment has been received at the county headquarters will be the initial step in acquainting farmers with the amount of benefit payments possible under the 1938 program. Instead of a soil depleting base for each farm as in 1937, each farm will now have a soil depleting acreage allotment, possible benefits on which in Calumet county will be somewhat higher than the national average of $125 per acre, according to Mr. Heimann. Two-thirds of the non-depleting acreage allotment is to constitute a goal on which payments accrue in accordance with the performance of soil building practices. An additional flat payment of $1270 on allotments below 65 acres is estimated to give the small farmer a slight advantage over those who work larger farms.

New Provisions
Other points touched upon by Mr. Heimann in discussing the new program were the provision that deductions on benefit payments are possible where farmers increase their dairy herds by more than two cows depending on whether the county production is above or below normal; and the provision whereby a farm worked partly by the owner and partly by a tenant will be handled as a single unit. In a concluding speech, County Agent McMahon characterized the program as a genuine farm program administered by genuine farmers. As an example of the consequences of unrestricted production, he cited the wheat situation beginning during the period of 1917 to 1928 when from a normal production of about 600,000 bushels, wheat farmers, defying the suggestion of the national government, demoralized the market by raising production to an unprecedented peak of 1,200,000 bushels. California fruit growers, he said, suffered from the depression in consequence of a state law stabilizing production which was passed as early as 1915.

Similar meetings were being held Saturday at Potter and Chilton. The series concludes at New Holstein on April 4.

'Mexican Fiesta' to Be Background for Clintonville Prom

Clintonville—A "Mexican fiesta" will provide the decorating scheme for the annual junior promenade at Clintonville high school on Friday evening, April 29. Work on the decorations soon will get underway, the committee in charge being headed by Miss Betty Brohm, Highland Kichner is the junior class president.

At a recent meeting of the senior class, it was voted almost unanimously to wear caps and gowns for graduation. The habit will be of a gray color and styled simply. The cap is square with a tassel hanging from the center of the crown, similar to those worn by high school and college students throughout the country. Girls of the class will wear plain white collars on their gowns. For the last few years, the girl graduates of the local high school wore suits for the baccalaureate services and semi-formal dresses for commencement.

The senior class chose royal blue and white for its colors; the red rose for the class flower; and for its motto will have "Character is the only true diploma."

For their class play, the seniors have chosen "New Fires" by Charles Quimby Burdette. Rehearsals will be directed by Miss Rose Walters of the high school faculty and the play will be presented at the high school auditorium on Friday evening, May 6.

Work on the high school annual, "Clintonville," is progressing under the supervision of Mrs. Gertrude Schurli. It is expected that 500 annuals will be printed this year and the books will make their appearance late in May.

THOSE ON THE RAGGED EDGE

At opportune times Mr. Roosevelt expresses his concern over those millions in the country whose income is insufficient to permit them to live on a scale in keeping with what we like to call "American Standards."

The President's declared purpose of lifting those people up both for their own good and for the good of the rest of us, is one concerning which the country may agree with that unanimity known as Hitler election. Certainly no more than one person out of a hundred could be found either bitter or hateful enough to wish to keep those illy provided constantly in a position of non-improvement.

But it is one thing to wish to raise millions up, and it is a wholly different thing to accomplish that purpose even if we all voted and acted unanimously to that end. We might make some headway in that direction quickly under a ruthless dictatorship. We make headway slowly under our form of government because those involved and affected make it most difficult to accomplish the stated end.

As applied to the Southland, Mr. Roosevelt faces several million share-croppers whose normal income for many years has been about that of a present day relief worker. He would like to double that income at least. So would the rest of us. Why is it not done, then?

The President says that he can accomplish this purpose if he can raise the price of cotton by limiting the output. Anyone who will vision for himself the results when crops are less, and less work is to be done, may speculate safely in the knowledge that everything will not be rosy merely by raising the price of cotton. We must all concede that better prices for a staple like cotton must mean better income for the share-croppers affected. Yet that is not going to put them in better shape than they are today unless other equally important limitations upon them are likewise given serious consideration.

For instance, Oklahoma today is a state bogged down with people on relief. And yet only 45 years ago over 200,000 families took homesteads in Oklahoma with the compliments of the United States government.

What has become of these homesteads? Where's the title now? Why have so many people lost their homes? Why have those very pioneers and their children lost so many of these farms? Could they have been saved alone by higher prices for products? Only one who wishes to be deceived will think he improves the share-croppers lot by merely giving him a larger pay check, important as that is.

The country wishes to be rid of the share-cropper. It doesn't particularly admire tenant farming. It is prouder as the percentage of home owners increases, and particularly in agriculture. But it cannot make people keep their homes. It cannot prevent them from gambling, drinking, wasting, borrowing excessively, buying excessively, hazarding their future and a thousand and one other things that are bound to have a material bearing upon that most important thing in our government—the owning by the people of their homes.

For long generations, and persisting still in some places, the government retained title to the land allotted to Indians refusing to permit them the right to sell their own property. It did this because it found that many Indians were just so much soft putty in the hands of white sharpers, and were tricked or chiseled out of their property only to wander along the roadside.

Thus entire races were straight-jacketed in respect to their liberty of action because of the tendencies of their weaker members. But it is not true that there are several millions of white people today who could not keep a home even if it is presented to them, and would persist in hazarding it so long as they could do with the title what they pleased?

In dealing with a sad and troublesome problem like that of the share-croppers we must never forget that in a high percentage of cases the individual or personality involved, his education, training, experience, disposition and judgment are bound to be important factors in the solution of the problem.

CURBING SWING MUSIC

A few years ago some of the more venturesome popular orchestras tried to "jazz" old song favorites and were promptly sat on. Lately musical anarchists have been trying to "swing" beloved sentimental ballads, with the same result. The public won't stand for it.

ONE BROADCASTING STATION, WHICH STARTED TO FIGHT THIS SACRILEGE ON ITS OWN INITIATIVE, FORBIDDING SWING VERSIONS OF ANY OF OUR OLD FAMILIAR AMERICAN SONGS, HAS MET WITH SURPRISING POPULAR SUPPORT. NOT CONTENT WITH SWITCHING OFF ANY SUCH VERSIONS ON HIS OWN PROGRAMS, THE MANAGER ARRANGED A COAST-TO-COAST CONTEST BETWEEN A NEW YORK SWING BAND AND AN ORTHODOX DETROIT ORCHESTRA. THE TWO METHODS WERE GIVEN A FAIR TEST. SOME OF THE SAMPLE SONGS WERE "ANNIE LAURIE," "LOCH LOMOND," "LOVE'S OLD SWEET SONG" AND "BROWN BIRD SINGING." THE SWING AND SWAY OF THE MODERNIST NEW YORKERS WERE OUTVOTED BY LISTENERS NINE TO ONE IN FAVOR OF THE OLD-FASHIONED DETROITERS.

That should settle the question. Swing, anyway, is probably destined to short life, while our beloved songs, proved through generations, hold their own regardless of changing fads.

TOTTERING TOWERS

The Washington monument is sinking, says Dr. Dimitri P. Krynnine, research associate in soil mechanics at Yale University. It is a very slow process. The total has been only one inch in the last 54 years. According to the same authority, there are a number of famous structures in the world which are stable enough to the ordinary eye but which do considerable shifting when measured scientifically.

The leaning tower of Pisa, for example, was leaning so much when Mussolini became head man of Italy that he had it re-inforced. More than 1,000 tons of high-strength cement have been injected into the structure since 1932. Then the movement of the top of the tower was closely measured with an "inclinometer." The observers found almost incredible movement. Between September 1934 and April 1935, the tower moved north, then south for a month or two, then north again. "At the same time the tower was persistently moving eastward."

Various famous European cathedrals are settling gradually and also moving horizontally. Fortunately such shifting of position is slight. It cannot be noted by the eye, even over a generation or two.

All this movement is caused by the slow packing down of layers of clay from 10 to 40 feet in thickness and located at great depth. No need to worry, though. The Washington monument will remain in place for a long time to come.

OVER THE TOP

The American Legion celebrated its 19th birthday this week, and did it in spectacular style with a total membership of over 800,000 throughout the country, an all-time high in the history of the veterans' organization.

The Wisconsin department was again on top of the list, the leading state in the membership drive and one of four to fulfill its quota.

There must be some inherent reason for the success of the Legion.

For it must be remembered that the number of men eligible for membership is constantly decreasing. Officials estimate that veterans of the World war are dying at the rate of 103 a day nationally at the present time, and the rate was even greater than that in the years immediately following the conflict.

It may be that this is the normal history of any veterans' group, for the G.A.R. came into its greatest power between 20 and 25 years after the Civil war.

As veterans of the World war grow older, the spirit of comradeship with other veterans undoubtedly grows stronger and the ties of such an organization as the Legion more binding.

It is undoubtedly too a tribute to the worth of the Legion, to its program and to its officials. Any organization which can attract an ever greater membership from an ever-narrowing field must offer something of value both to its members and to the country as a whole.

SERVICE, A NEW BUSINESS

One of the new developments of the times is quaintly called "consumer service." Manufacturers supplement production of things for the public to buy with an information service to teach buyers how to make fullest use of the goods.

The grocers, the gas and electric concerns, the makers of labor-saving equipment, and many others conduct research laboratories and provide instructors to tell the public new ways to use their products. There are new recipes, cooking demonstrations, diet lists, pamphlets and lecturers on proper home laundry processes, housecleaning, and everything else that concerns and interests the housewife.

These services are part of the campaign to promote sales, but they have unquestionably made consumers better informed on a wide variety of subjects.

They do something else. They provide opportunity to earn a living to a great throng of people who, in other times, would have had quite different occupations. Service is increasing in amount and importance in this country. It is expected by the public as never before. It must be paid for, of course, making a factor in the cost of living which is not always taken into consideration by the consumer.

SEAS

I think that there will never be A poem lovely as the sea

The sea who's hungry waves reach high As if to beckon to the sky.

The sea that looks at God all day And lifts its dashing waves to pray.

The sea that may in winter wear Breakers that are white and fair.

Upon who's breast the icebergs float As if to frighten passing boats.

Poems are made by fools like me But only God can rule the sea.

A Verse for Today

GROWING OLD

We will be glad as we grow old, Grateful for every added day, Seeing the sunset's friendly gold, Shutting our eyes to clouds of gray. We cannot stop the flight of years. Though we may mourn their hurrying, Through every cloud the sun appears. Winter is but a path to Spring.

Who knows what high adventure lies Back of that final hour of peace, When Sorrow drops from mortal eyes, And the long dreaming finds release. Joy will be beams of sunlight still, Dancing through hours we cannot hold. There will be light upon the hill As hand in hand we two grow old. (Copyright, 1938)

ANOTHER EMERGENCY MEASURE THAT WOULD CERTAINLY BECOME PERMANENT

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

WHAT A "COLD" REALLY IS
Last month we recorded the bulletin distributed by the New York State Medical Society announcing to the public that "a cold is never really just a 'cold,' after all, but something entirely different. Sorry, we have been stringing you along for years with the false-faced fallacy that a cold is just a cold. But now that we have made a monkey out of the nameless doctor who has been trying to tell the public, for years and years, that there is no such thing as a 'cold,' we, the organized medical profession of the State of New York, hereby VOUCH FOR the accuracy of this definition of a 'cold!'"

"It is an infection which may be contracted from a friend who sneezes or coughs at us." Eminent specialists that we are, it seems to us that this is as far as we can go at present without loss of dignity. Give us ten or twenty years more to quibble and squirm and maybe we'll be ready to acknowledge that respiratory infection is at least as likely to be carried in polite conversational spray as in the spray of an open-face cough or sneeze—if that's the kind of friends one has.

Fortnight after the N. Y. State Medical Society organ flopped on the "cold" controversy, the national medical society organ came out with still a different dictum on the question: "Owing to lack of scientific information as to what a cold really is and the great variability of its incidence in individuals as well as in communities, a scientific investigation on the question of the use of sodium bicarbonate as preventive or treatment would be most difficult."

So there you are, all clear on the question "What is a so-called 'cold' and what should one do about it?" To date the medical profession has recognized the hazard of conversational spray infection in only one place—in the operating room. Everybody dons a mask there.

Now if some genius would devise a mask that would look imposing or even beautiful or at least not ugly or frightful to timid souls, maybe we could make some headway in the prevention of respiratory infection, which is responsible for most of the illness physicians attend and for most of the absenteeism in national commercial, industrial and educational records.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Ab. Avocado
Please tell me what food value alligator pears have. (Mrs. W. G. D.)

Answer—the edible part yields an average of 1,000 calories to the pound. Chiefly fat. Twice as nourishing as banana; three times as nourishing as potato. Avocado is three times as rich in iron as the much vaunted spinach, an excellent source of calcium and phosphorus, rich in vitamin A.

Dandruff
Please print a good remedy for dandruff. (M. L.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for Care of the Hair and Control of Dandruff.

Adhesions
Different doctors I have asked about the ambulant treatment of hernia as recommended by you tell me it is successful only in the very young and could not do at all for older persons, as it might even cause adhesions. (A. R.)

Answer—Ambulant (injection) treatment in qualified hands is rather less likely to cause "adhesions" than is dissection. But beware of unqualified persons who promise to cure hernia by nonsurgical treatment. Injection treatment is as truly surgical and demands as great skill as any other.

Your Birthday

"ARIES"
If March 29 is your birthday, the best-hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m.; from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m.; from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m. Voluntary actions will add greatly to the happiness of mankind this day, so do what you can to help brighten someone's life. Conflicting emotions may be the cause of delaying many important decisions. It might be well therefore to try to view domestic, business and social problems dispassionately, so you can give a quick, unprejudiced verdict. There may be something in the wind that will bring you very good luck, possibly through a radical change in your personal affairs. Possession may be "eleven points in the law," but under certain circumstances this day, it might be unwise to try to prove this statement should it be disputed. It may be well to think twice to prove the depth and sincerity of your friendship to some person who is worthy of it, and has need of its being demonstrated in a practical way. Married and engaged couples, as well as those with matrimonial ambitions, must be very careful in words and actions to successfully avoid controversies or quarrels this day.

If a woman and March 29 is your birthday, you are liable to have very radical ideas that it might be just as well to abandon. Many people born on this date find to realize the importance of being diplomatic in their dealings with the public. It will be only by showing consideration for the feelings of others that you can expect success to crown your efforts to win social, commercial or artistic recognition. You ought to be temperamentally qualified to succeed as an actress, musician, singer, newspaper woman or business manager. Your matrimonial prospects seem to be free of any serious domestic problems, and many of them give promise of a great deal of prosperity and happiness.

The child born on March 29 is usually quick to grasp facts and opportunities for its future advancement. This youngster ought to be inherently truthful and thoroughly reliable. Upon reaching maturity, persons born on this date usually find the road that leads to success. If a man and March 29 is your natal day, it might be through some stroke of good fortune that both wealth and fame will come to you. As a contractor, politician, writer, actor, artist, sculptor, musician, manufacturer, inventor, or salesman you apparently will have no cause to complain of your ultimate results.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Covering art galleries in New York is usually a bore, and I would be the last to recommend it as a pastime to visitors with only a few days to spare. However, if nothing can dissuade you, one of the many in 7th street near Madison may provide a few interesting moments.

Probably you will enjoy the portrait of a Procurator of Venice, a white-bearded old gentleman who looks just like that new premier King Carol appointed the other day.... Then there is a young maiden with black curly hair, half nude and gazing fondly at a skull.... The footnotes explain that this is the ideal of 18th century beauty, yet to me that skull sounds an ominous note. One can scarcely pick up a newspaper nowadays without seeing where somebody has been slain by a pretty girl.

For the nimrod's eye there is a Young Huntsman With Rifle. He has succeeded in knocking over a couple of plump birds and he seems well pleased with himself. However, I wouldn't want to go hunting with him. He carries his gun by the muzzle with the rest of it slung over his shoulder, like a baseball player with a bat, which is an excellent way to shoot your companion if you stub your toe or take a sudden dislike to him.

Portrait of a Patrician Holding a Book is a forceful, black-bearded personage who is certainly a villain if ever I saw one. He seems to have been disturbed by someone, probably the artist, and he is fixing the intruder with a very evil eye.

In pleasing contrast was the Portrait of a Gentleman in Gray, a sly old coddler in full wig and a velvet jacket over an embroidered waistcoat. He suggests a small boy stealing cookies, as in this study he has sneaked off to enjoy a pinch of snuff, probably against his wife's orders.

The thing that impresses you about these portraits, and there are 73 of them, is the sly, crafty light in their eyes and what probably was, in real life, their enormous capacity for intrigue and devilry. There are hawk-nosed sports from Venice, rakes and powdered fops from Versailles, and deceitful old expatriates from every court in Europe. Most of these were painted around 1800, when Villon was hiding from the gibbet, and Columbus, and just completed his voyages. No doubt the masters drew their models from the jails and gutters, which accounts, probably, for that gleam of impertinence in so many of their eyes.

bung-bang-bong. Bong-bang-bing-bung. Bing-bang-bung-bong." It was 6:45. The distressed cameramen stopped their machines. One mechanically looked at his wrist watch in this trying-moment to see if it also said 6:45.

"Please start the paragraph over," said the cameraman. But the ambassador forgot about his hand so they had to begin again. Just then a telephone on the desk beside him rang. Another start. They finished the second paragraph and were half way through the third when a servant entered, stumbled over a rug and dropped a huge silver platter which emitted a sullen "clong." But enough was enough. The cameramen ignored it. So did the ambassador.

Home Shouldn't Continue Schoolroom Atmosphere

BY ANGELO PATRI

Going to school is a job. It means concentrated work for long periods. Grown people are likely to overlook this fact because their school days are far behind them. They forget the times when they pushed the clock hands with the full pressure of their minds, when their legs and arms ached and their heads went light. All this happens to school children.

The dismissal bell is the sweetest sound a school child's ears enjoy. Even the child who loves going to school loves to get home again. Home spells release from restriction, a chance to move freely under one's own will. It means rest, recreation, and an audience friendly to the performer. At least it ought to be.

Some anxious mothers make the mistake of continuing the school atmosphere in the home. The moment the child enters the house he is ordered to get ready for his music practice; sit right down now and do his homework; bring his book and recite his lessons to his mother. Make accurate and prolonged reports on what he did today and what he is to do for tomorrow.

The child's first need on coming home from school is to feel released. Mind and body need stretching. Prepare for that period in the home as carefully as the teacher prepares for the first period in the morning, and the children will thrive better at school and at home, and life will be more pleasant in both places for all concerned.

Somewhere, mother most of the time, ought to be on hand when the children get home. If nobody is waiting, why hurry home? It is better that children get home promptly after school, for many reasons. First, having been freed of school control they should feel home calling them. That steadies them and prevents their getting into places where they would better not be.

Have a light lunch waiting. An apple and a few cookies, an apple and a bit of plain cake, or brown bread and butter. Let them tell their adventures. Listen generously. When the last crumbs are gone start them on the afternoon's routine. Play clothes, a spell of outdoor play; then music practice; rest; preparations for the evening meal. Study hour, rest without restrictions as to duties; then preparation for bed.

Home should not continue the school atmosphere. It should break into it with a more wholesome, more zestful air. It is too bad to have mother and father turn themselves into drill masters and coaches every night. Why should that be necessary if the school is doing its work? The homework ought to be closely associated with the day's lessons, easily done, and soon. A few questions on occasions; a suggestion offered; quiet and order maintained for the study hour.

Mistake Leads to Game Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson, I am enclosing a hand played recently by a foursome from the University of Chicago. The hand was the funniest I ever have played. My partner, a co-ed, nodding for a moment, bid one spade when she meant to say one heart, and it was this mistake that gave us a game and cheated the opponents out of a small slam that would have been a laydown."

10 6 5 4	3

The bidding:
North 1 spade
East 1 heart
South 2 hearts
West 2 hearts

"When North bid the spades East thought that she (East) didn't have and consequently didn't bid them, as she afterward said she had intended to do. Instead she bid diamonds and gave me a chance to show my heart suit without raising the contract. West having, as she thought, a very poor hand, kept a discreet silence and thus the marvelous fit in spades and, incidentally, in diamonds also, remained undiscovered. North, now wide awake, jumped to game to shut off the bidding," sensing the fact that East and West might have a fit between them with the uneven distribution in her (North's) hand and hoping that East would be afraid to bid five diamonds after receiving no support from her partner."

"If North had bid one heart East would have followed with one spade and my partner and I would have been taken to the cleaners when East and West got together with their spades and diamonds. West would have taken only one club trick. This is one case in which it paid to make a mistake, to the tune of 2,000 points."

"Sincerely yours,
"D. H. B. Chicago."

I agree that the result was highly satisfactory and amusing to the North-South team, but I imagine that their chuckles were somewhat heartier than those of East and West. North's slip of the tongue undoubtedly makes matters difficult for East, who probably knew that North never made psychic bids and who, therefore, had to credit North with the balance of the spade strength. Still, I think that East might have maneuvered more adroitly than by merely overcalling with two diamonds. Had East made a takeout double it is true that she would have risked a heart response from her partner, but if this came at the mere two level, East then could afford to show possession of an excellent spade suit by bidding two spades. It should be noted that this is the one method whereby it is possible to show a suit previously bid by an opponent. East could not overbid one spade by bidding two spades, because such a bid would be a lie bid showing no length but merely first round control. The initial takeout double, followed by the later bid of the suit, advertises length and strength in the suit itself. Obviously had East ever indicated that she held an excellent spade suit, West would have raised vigorously, if only at a sacrifice. I freely admit, however, that if I were to bid East's hand I would prefer that my right-hand opponent did not open the bidding with one spade!

Facts About British Columbia

British Columbia comes close to being the most western part of Canada, but the Yukon territory, north of this province, stretches farther westward. The Yukon doesn't have many people, but it is famed as the place of the famous Klondike gold rush 40 years ago.

Hanging foot-bridge over Capilano canyon, Vancouver, B. C.

British Columbia has been called "the Switzerland of America," because of its mountain scenery. Perhaps we should change this to "one of the Switzerlands of America," since many other parts of our continent also have beautiful mountains.

British Columbia is large enough to hold 22 countries the size of Switzerland. It is more than one and a half times as large as France. The population of British Columbia has grown a good deal during the past 20 years, but the province is not thickly settled. The present population is about three-quarters of a million.

A famous island and a large and beautiful city of British Columbia both have the name of Vancouver. The city is on the mainland, however, not on the island.

The name "Vancouver" honors an English explorer, George Vancouver. Somewhat less than a century and a half ago, he sailed clear around Vancouver island, and he is honored as the first to perform that deed.

Victoria, the capital of British Columbia, is a pretty city with a fine climate. Blooming flowers often are to be seen in the gardens in mid-winter. The warm Japan current bathes the coasts of British Columbia, and that is why the winters are so mild. There is a good deal of rainfall but little snow, in coastal parts of the province during winter.

Vancouver island is a portion of a mountain range. The mountain range sank under ocean water, leaving only its higher parts above the surface. Scores of smaller islands, off the coast of British Columbia, are really mountain peaks.

On the mainland, away from the coast the British Columbia climate is not nearly so mild in winter. In cold stretches, the thermometer goes down to points from 20 to 30 degrees below zero.

Spring Calls For Softer Floral Odors

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Spring has always been the "open season" for a change of perfume. The heavy, heady perfumes you wore with your winter mood, manner and furs should give way to softer scents.

This Spring more than any other calls for floral odors. Why? because flowers seem to dominate the fashion and beauty scheme. They blossom forth in beautiful, luscious patterns on dresses, in tiny clusters on boleros, in giant size blooms perching on little bits of hats. Flowers are everywhere. It's the season for flowers, so why not perfumes that capture the very essence of the flowers themselves?

One of our leading perfumers introduces for Spring a new bouquet of floral odors—a choice of nine favorite flower perfumes. They come in lovely fluted flacons with the stately grace of Doric columns. If the gardenia is the grandest flower to you, you can have this scent; if the lily of the valley or the lilac seem loveliest, yours is the choice; then there's the inevitable rose, carnation, there's ylang-ylang, jasmine, narcissus and the violet.

New Ways of Application

So, select your favorite. And apply it in a daring new way. Spray it on the little boutonniere for your new Spring suit, whether that boutonniere is of silk or enamel. Wear one of those clever little pins which conceal a bit of cotton to be soaked with your favorite scent. Give breath to the flowers on your hat, or the ones you wear in your hair. Toss your palms and wrists (old-fashioned tricks, these).

My Neighbor Says—

Early in April and again in mid-summer scatter a cupful of air-slacked lime into the soil surrounding each of your rose bushes and fork it in. This sweetens and fertilizes the soil.

If rust stains from screens appear after the curtains are washed, they may be removed before the rinsing by using a solution of two tablespoons of oxalic acid crystals in one pint of warm water. This solution may be applied to the stain with a dropper. Applications should be continued until the stain is gone. The curtain is then rinsed thoroughly, one tablespoonful of ammonia being added to the last rinse.

For others "candor"? Are you a wisecracker who thinks it witty to hold up to ridicule some weakness or peculiarity of others and who will crucify his best friend to get a laugh?

If you have any one of these characteristics, you don't have to seek any further to know why you are unpopular.

Good Taste Today

BUFFET MEAL WITHOUT RULE
Dear Mrs. Post: There is one detail about the serving of a buffet meal that leaves me confused. Buffet meals are not very usual in this community and yet, I believe buffet service is the only kind that will enable me to entertain the number of people I should invite on this next occasion. Let's say there are to be three courses: a fish newburg and then chicken and salad and dessert; and coffee. These are to be served from the dining table, also set with the necessary silver and stacks of plates and napkins. Are guests supposed to go into the dining room first for the newburg and then go back again after they've eaten this, for the chicken and salad, and then back for the third time for the dessert? And are all the courses supposed to be on the table from the start?

Answer: Everything except the dessert and the after dinner coffee is usually put on the table at the start. People go into the dining room and help themselves to whatever they choose. In other words, a buffet is quite without rule. Some might help themselves to the fish first and go back later for the chicken or perhaps for a second helping of fish instead of chicken. Others might pile everything on their plates at one time. They go back and forth to the table as often as they please or make only the necessary two trips: one for the main course and one for the dessert. To the particular menu you have described should be added breads of different kinds and a substantial starch dish such as rice or baked macaroni or scalloped white potatoes or a baking dish of sweet potatoes. Otherwise, fish plain with nothing excepting a little sauce and the chicken plain with the salad would not make a very substantial meal.

The one complication of a buffet meal is that those who are not used to it are apt to sit and wait. In this case they have to be told exactly like children, "Will you please go out to the dining room and help yourselves." And in the dining room if, after they have helped themselves, they stand around in the way of others, someone has to say, "Will you please go and find some place to sit?"

Dear Mrs. Post: We are having a judge and his wife and mother and sister to dinner. Who should be given the place of honor at the right of my husband, and accordingly, be served first?

Answer: The judge's mother.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

Lawns ought to be fed as soon as the ground is dry enough to be walked on. It is not necessary to wait until the grass starts to grow. In fact, it is much better to apply fertilizer before the grass starts, for then there will be no necessity of using the hose to wash it into the ground. The rain will carry it down to the roots which start into activity long before the tops show signs of renewed life. Fertilizers vary in strength, but four pounds to 100 square feet of lawn area is about the right amount to use. It is best to apply the fertilizer on a still morning and to distribute it evenly over the whole surface.

Planning Board Studies Problem Of River Floods

Offers Suggestions for Curbing Fox-Wolf High Water Menace

Menasha — If recurrent high stages of water and flood peaks in the Fox-Wolf river area are to be harnessed, man's engineering prowess must be called into play, according to a report of the Wisconsin State Planning board. The board has advanced nine suggestions for curbing the high water menace.

The Fox-Wolf Conservation and Improvement association, of which E. G. Sonnenberg, Menasha, is a member, was instrumental in securing the state study of the area. Other members of the association are Mayor Charles Wiechering, Oshkosh; Philip Vogt, Appleton; H. F. Weckworth, Kaukauna; R. H. Rasmussen, New London; Allan Tripp, Fremont; Carl Robertson, Oshkosh, and L. F. Jones, Fond du Lac.

The state report stated that the Fox and Wolf rivers and certain tributaries are subject to wide variations in stream flow and recurrent high stages of water and flood peak which have occasioned great damage to property in the municipalities on these rivers from time to time.

Not only have floods caused trouble, according to the survey, but low water stages have likewise been harmful, particularly to the public water supplies, power production, paper and other manufacturing plants and waste disposal.

The feasibility of construction of a series of small reservoirs for flood control and stream regulation was one of the measures considered by the board members in their study. However, the cost of such a project on a scale sufficient to have any substantial effect would be prohibitive from the engineering viewpoint.

Coach Jorgensen To Issue Call for Track Candidates

Neenah Mentor Expects More Than 60 to Report for Practice

The coach expects more than 60 candidates to answer the call. Practices will be held in the gymnasium until the cinder track and field are in condition. To consist mainly of conditioning exercises, the indoor training will give the trackmen an opportunity to get into proper physical condition before actual racing starts.

The Red Rockets this season face a strenuous schedule, and the coach plans to pare the number of candidates to a working squad. A track meet will be held as soon as outdoor practice starts, and a qualifying time will be set in each event. Candidates qualifying in the meet will make up the squad.

Six Veterans

Jorgensen has only six veterans returning from last year's squad. Captain Frank Haerli, the Rockets' "Iron man," will be assigned to take care of the dashes and the broad jump, while Dale Dodge and Dean Sword will run the hurdles, the former competing in the high hurdles and the latter in the low hurdles.

Dr. Morgan Accustomed to Struggle, Disappointment

Washington—The best qualified man we could find in the country. That was the White House description of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan when, in 1933, President Roosevelt appointed him chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, first big pillar in the New Deal's planned economy structure.

Morgan became accustomed to struggle and disappointment early in life. He fought the handicap of ill health. His schooling was curtailed because his sight was poor. But the charge that he sabotaged TVA, brought by his fellow board members, probably is the most bitter poison he ever tasted.

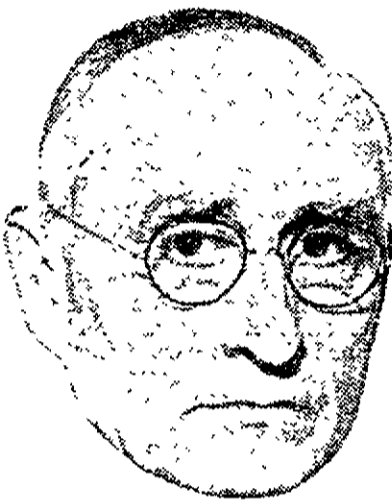

Moral rectitude apparently has been a fetish with Dr. Morgan. He has emphasized the "uplift" program for the folk of Tennessee's valleys and hills to make them ready "for the changed world brought about by the reclamation of their lands."

An excerpt from his diary, written when he was 18, reads:

"On looking backward (this the last day of the year) I think I see moral but not mental or physical improvement."

At 20 he wrote: "I am rather too discontented for my own good. I think I am . . . impulsive and emotional, and it is hard to tell what is the right course. I have tried very hard to make exact right, and not right as it is popularly interpreted, my guide."

Supporters of board members David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt C. Morgan contend Dr. Morgan's uncompromising zeal for carrying at a program as he envisioned it made him intolerant.

DR. ARTHUR E. MORGAN
At 20 He Was Discontented.

Backers of "A. E." assert he has made a characteristic conscientious struggle for democratic principles.

When President Roosevelt chose Dr. Morgan from 10 possibilities to lead TVA, the educator had long since attained distinction as a flood control engineer and as a unique contributor to the knowledge of education.

In 1933 he was serving his 18th year as president of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio. He had increased the college enrollment in a few years from 60 to almost 800 students by alternating classroom study with work in stores, factories, offices and laboratories of co-operating business firms throughout the country.

President Morgan edited the semi-monthly "Antioch Notes." Some years ago Franklin D. Roosevelt's name was put on the subscription list. Mr. Roosevelt liked Dr. Morgan's "frank, pointed and sensible remarks about life and human beings." He proceeded to learn more about this the idealist, and the TVA appointment was a consequence.

Dr. Morgan was born in Cincinnati, grew up in the Mississippi river backwoods and at 19 was graduated from high school in St. Cloud, Minn. Delicate in health, he worked outdoors and slept in a tent in the North Woods when the mercury registered as low as 30 below zero.

Eye trouble prevented continuation of his studies after high school and he worked his way to Colorado, via lumber camps, farms and print shops. Returning to St. Cloud three years later he began a surveying career which brought him recognition as an engineer.

He learned drainage and reclamation work, and his services were sought in several parts of the country. He gets the title doctor from an honorary degree in science conferred on him by the University of Colorado in 1923.

He married Miss Urania Jones in 1904. She died the next year. He was married to Lucy Middleton Griscom of Woodbury, N. J., in 1911. He had a son by his first wife. A son and a daughter were born of the second marriage. The Morgans also have an adopted daughter.

Safety in Home And on Highway, Topic of Speech

Milwaukeean Is Speaker at Meeting of Seymour Woman's Club

Seymour — Clarence F. Otto, Milwaukee, of the Employers Mutuals, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Seymour Woman's Club at the Falck hotel Friday afternoon. His subject was "Safety in the Home and on the Highway."

Accidents, he said, are caused by someone committing along the line who has been indifferent, careless, or forgetful. He said that in 1936 more persons were killed in the home than by automobile, the outstanding cause being falls. Every room in the home is a cause for accidents, especially the kitchen and bathroom.

A billion dollars were spent in fire losses in one year due to sheer carelessness. He asserted that every day three children die in fires in the United States and that one out of every three children will be killed or injured in accidents in the home before he is 21-years old. "Accidents just don't happen, they are caused," said Mr. Otto. "Sensible care makes accidents rare."

In conducting a highway safety campaign in any community it is necessary to first see through the problem of safety and then see the problem through," was Otto's opening statement on the second part of his talk.

He gave four main causes of accidents on the highway. Speed is the first. Night driving is another one. Only one-third of the people drive at night but two-thirds of the accidents happen at night. The pedestrian is the third main cause. A driver as he steps from his car does the same thing he cursed some pedestrian for doing while he was still driving. The fourth cause is gasoline plus alcohol. These do not mix. The drunken driver is a potential murderer. In closing Mr. Otto emphasized that the problem of safety would be solved when each individual recognized his own responsibility.

Safety Contest Awards

In the safety contest conducted by the club the following awards were given: in posters, Gerald Reed, first; Arthur Wolk and Raymond Miller, second; in essays, first to Virgie Bunkelman, second to Marilyn Miller, third to Marian Adamski. The participants in the contest were guests of the club.

During the business meeting two new members were accepted: Mrs. Charles Willis and Mrs. Theodore Cloud. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. E. T. Hawkins on Friday, April 8, with an illustrated talk on "Sweden." There will be open discussion on the work of the club next year. Thirteen one-members and twelve visitors were present at the meeting. Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Mary Falck.

Public speaking contests were held at Seymour High school Friday afternoon and evening. The results of the afternoon contests were as follows: oratory, Laurent Bernhardt, first, with "A Challenge to Youth"; Jon Capron, second, with "Students in Peace"; Wallace Rusch, third, with "We're Trying to Buy Peace at Half Price." Other contestants were Della Glaser and Tom Reed. In extemporaneous reading, first was awarded to Ferne Huth; second, Mildred Ruwoldt; third, Betty Bunkelman.

In the evening Marie Barth in "Blackbeard vs. Blue Eyes" won first place in the dramatic declamation contest. Awards in the extemporaneous speaking contest were given to the following: Carlisle Runge, first; Tom Reed, second; Jon Capron, third.

Dave Beck Is Unioneer Of the Patriotic Type

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

San Francisco—It will come under the heading of new business to consider labor organization as a manifestation of the fascist spirit, for the alarmist accusation commonly points the finger in the opposite direction. But under fascism the unions are supposed to be patriotic organizations with a mission to repel the revolutionary left by co-operating with business under the discipline of the state and we are beginning to find right-wing labor bosses here who have mixed purposes.

Pegler

Mr. Dave Beck, the head man of the teamsters union on the Pacific coast, is a unioneer of the patriotic type. He had two years of high school, went to the war as an aviation mechanic, and is proud to have held exalted office in the Elks. He hates and baits communists with Rotarian fervor, and proclaims his purpose to co-operate with business so that capital may make a dollar, too.

So far all right, but up in Seattle, where Mr. Beck formerly was absolute boss, this co-operation took an unexpected turn. He co-operated with capital, and business suddenly began to co-operate back with the result that businessmen became union organizations, compelling their men to join unions lest their stores and plants be embargoed for maintaining the open shop.

This brought unions and businessmen into a very cozy relationship under the government of a city administration which was elected and controlled by Mr. Beck. Not all business, of course, but enough of business to run things in co-operation with the blue-eyed, patriotic Elk and duce, pressed the advantage to regulate competition and maintain prices at a high level through a method amounting to an informal licensing system, similar in effect to that which is used in fascist Italy. A businessman who plays ball with a union under a dictatorship naturally expects the union to play ball with him. Mr. Beck did not do these things officially. They were done by businessmen who, by yielding to the demands of labor, had become the baited dogs of the regime and junio partners in power.

Unions Guard Friends Against Price Cutting

Too much competition meant close pricing and price cutting, and the unions held a regulatory authority in their power to boycott and picket any business which intruded on the zone or undercut the prices of a house in good standing.

Mr. Beck is as frank as a child in his assertion and exercise of the right and power to "crucify" any business. "Crucify" is his own word for the operation. Sometimes he finds it necessary to do this to an industry which is trying hard to co-operate with capital for reasons of two state departments were on hand today to supervise operations of professional and amateur fishermen and fish dealers in the northeastern Wisconsin section as the annual smelt run approached its height in the Green Bay area waters.

Upon the invitation of leading fish dealers, several inspectors of the department of agriculture and markets were stationed in the Green Bay area this week to watch the handling, storing and transporting of smelt for commercial purposes.

Services of the inspectors was sought as a means of improving the quality of smelt placed on the market and for increasing the demand for the product, it was said.

Chief points of inspection are at Marinette, Green Bay, Oconto, Peshigo, Penseuque, Little Saumelle, Big Saumelle and De Pere. At the same time H. W. McKenzie, director, and Barney Devine, chief warden of the conservation department, announced that reinforcements have been dispatched to the smelt region to assist regular county wardens in the enforcement of the conservation laws.

McKenzie said that a system of inspection and enforcement is now being worked out which will become a fixed program for the future, if the smelt production holds out.

State experts in the conservation department, who have studied the annual harvest of smelt, still regard it as a natural phenomenon not fully explained. Ten years ago, according to Edward W. Schnberger, chief biologist of the department, smelt were almost unknown in Wisconsin, while today hundreds of tons are being removed at points from Green Bay north to Menominee, Michigan.

State enforcement in the area is under the supervision of George Hadland, Brown county conservation warden, and an expert in fisheries in his own right, McKenzie said.

This year's smelt run, it was pointed out, began several days later than the 1937 season which listed 22 days. The conservation department expects fishing to continue for at least two more weeks.

The brewery workers in California would not surrender to his union of teamsters the brewery truckmen who belonged to the brewery workers' union by prior right. It is true that these men are teamsters, but it is also true that brewery workers are older than the teamsters and held jurisdiction over the brewery truckmen from the start. The American Federation of Labor repeatedly awarded Mr. Beck jurisdiction the brewery workers refused to yield, and Mr. Beck now boasts that the blameless brewery firms of California are embargoed in the important northwestern field of inter-state commerce by his command.

To be sure, this does not reveal the spirit of co-operation, but Mr. Beck also boasts that in his own judgment he co-operated with the local breweries by taking them over and operating them entirely. He is inclined to think that this was rather patriotic and constructive of him and to overlook the assumption of an authority not ordinarily conceded to any power, including the government.

Method Of Enforcement Not Yet Determined

Now, in California, Mr. Beck is eager to co-operate with the trucking firms. His primary purpose is to make jobs for teamsters, but the California farmers would be to banish them from their own roads in their own state. Mr. Beck has decreed that no farmer may haul store goods back from the city to the rural districts for his neighbor or anyone except himself. The neighbor or other person must pay a trucking company to do this hauling even though many farm trucks ride back empty from the market. The trucking firm will hire teamsters and will be very co-operative with Mr. Beck in return for the chance to make a dollar.

There remains a small matter of enforcement of this decree issued to the California farmers by a residence of the state of Washington. The exact methods of enforcement have not been determined but if you were a farmer how would you like to find sand in your gears or razor cuts in your tires or have an accident, and break a leg? Mr. Beck, of course, is innocent of such thoughts, but teamsters are an abrupt and rugged lot and an executive cannot be held strictly accountable for the impulsive acts of individuals, can he?

State Wardens on Hand to Supervise Annual Smelt Run

Hundreds of Tons of Fish Will be Taken Out of Small Streams

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison Special—Representatives of two state departments were on hand today to supervise operations of professional and amateur fishermen and fish dealers in the northeastern Wisconsin section as the annual smelt run approached its height in the Green Bay area waters.

Firemen Put Out 1st Grass Fire of Year

Firemen put out the first reported grass fire of the year as they answered one of four alarms Sunday. The grass fire was reported at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a vacant lot on E. Newberry street.

Two small roof fires were extinguished Sunday morning. The first call was to the residence of Miss Frances Nuttall, 614 W. Atlantic street, and the second to the Alex. Bruso home, 1131 W. Eighth street, about noon. Both started from chimney sparks. Firemen were called to the Howard Meyer residence, 829 W. Spring street, at 5:35 Sunday afternoon when an oil tank heater set fire to a basement partition. There was little damage.

President Arouses Fear, Panic With 1-Man Government

Roosevelt Believes Himself Master-Mind of Economic Life, Lawrence Says

Washington—Five years ago, with magnificent courage and resolute purpose, President Roosevelt gave the financial and business communities of the nation an invigorating hope that banished fear. Today, the same man has aroused in the financial and business communities a fear amounting almost to terror and a distrust which has broken down the morale of our whole economic machinery to such an extent that what was first termed a "recession" now has deepened into a severe depression.

So widespread is the loss of faith in Mr. Roosevelt himself that it seems almost an incredible tragedy. It is not cause for bitterness, but an occasion for genuine lament. Scarcely ever in history has a heroic figure stood before such a large section of his fellowmen in subsequent years of indecision, wavering and even, in some eyes, indifference to the sufferings of millions of his countrymen.

The newspaper dispatches from Warm Springs over the weekend told of Mr. Roosevelt's long distance telephone conversations with officials here, trying to find out why the stock market broke so badly on Saturday. The reason is not difficult to ascertain. Business and finance had hoped that, out of the many months of talk and exhortation, the president might come to see that when the administration and business do not work together there is stagnation. Emisaries of the president had been sent to New York from time to time to assure the financial folk that Mr. Roosevelt would be helpful, would be constructive, would really recognize the handicaps faced by business.

Promises Broken

But now it turns out that all these promises were just so much empty froth scattered on the surface of things to camouflage the inner coldness toward the serious problems confronting business itself. So far has the bewilderment of the business world gone that some of the extremists among folk actually believe that Mr. Roosevelt wants things to get worse because he has some sinister purpose of grasping dictatorial powers when economic chaos comes. Such thoughts and suggestions are absurd, but they illustrate the depth of the blues which have seized so many of our business men.

Last week capped the climax of the distrust which business had begun to feel, together with a sheer lack of belief that the administration would ever be able to sense the troubles of economic recession. Three things happened:

1. Notwithstanding the outcry against the undistributed surplus tax during the last year, Mr. Roosevelt ordered his lieutenants to appear before congress and demand a retention of this principle of taxation.

2. Notwithstanding the fears of dictatorship aroused by Mr. Roosevelt's avowed attempt to exercise supreme court of the United States and influence its decisions, the president put all the pressure of his administration behind the attempt to pass the so-called "reorganization" bill, believed by many of its critics to contain too much power for the executive.

3. After having allowed business men to feel that the administration would cease its bitter attacks on business as it was, the president let loose one of his characteristic tirades in a speech at Gainesville, Ga.

No New Threat

Now, it so happens that the senate may eliminate the undistributed surplus tax—the finance committee of the senate has already done so—and it so happens also that there are many good things in the "reorganization" bill, and that congress can rewrite it every two years when it passes appropriation bills. It also happens that the Gainesville, Ga., speech by Roosevelt contained no new threat of hostile legislation.

Indeed, all three things can be excused and explained away readily, if one projects such an explanation on a background of trust and faith. But the fact that Mr. Roosevelt mobilized a majority in the senate for the reorganization bill, shook the foundations of business, because it seemed as if this was but a continuance of his arbitrary policy, reflected in the dismissal of so able and honest an official as Chairman Morgan of the TVA, and the fact that a believer in one-man government like Franklin D. Roosevelt might administer it which caused shivers to run up and down the financial and business backbone of the nation.

Similarly, it was reasoned that if Mr. Roosevelt could get a majority for his reorganization bill by personal pressure and administration jobbery, he might be able to do the same with respect to overturning the senate finance committee's favorable conception of tax revision.

The Georgia speech was the straw that broke the camel's back. It revealed to the financial world that Mr. Roosevelt had not abandoned his basic theory that the government can, for any purpose which he thinks benevolent, confiscate the property and the savings of the citizens and that the courts, the executive departments and the commissions, and the congress itself can be moulded to his will. These manifestations of his underlying attitude have rendered unsafe the investment of capital in enterprises for a profit.

Breaks Down Spirit

What Mr. Roosevelt has done—and I believe he has not done it intentionally—is to break down the spirit, and the faith of the business and financial world in the actual safety of a citizen's property and his savings. To strike down this bulwark of the whole economic system is to breed panic and fear of indescribably dangerous proportions.

Mr. Roosevelt has been importuned to lay aside his hymns of hate and his reforms that bleed an already bleeding patient. But, with a strange stubbornness which must be either defiance of what he thinks is a personal quarrel between himself and business or sheer ignorance of what is going on in the country, the president of the United States has chosen a course which hostile critics will call sabotage, but which in its essence is something else—a sincere belief in himself as the "master mind" of economic life. And to disprove his thesis, billions of dollars apparently now must be lost and millions of persons must lose jobs.

To persuade such a man, the people must assert their dissent by communicating with their representatives in congress now or by voting their dissent at the congressional elections next November, when all the members of the house of representatives are up for reelection as are also one-third of the members of the senate. That is really the only sure way out of the Roosevelt depression.

Girls Hold Reunion at College Gym

ONE hundred twenty-five veteran campers of the Appleton Girl Scout summer camp at Onaway Island, Waupaca, and 85 others including prospective campers and Girl Scouts gathered Saturday at Alexander gymnasium for a day of swimming, games, unit meetings, songs and a campfire program which comprised the annual camp reunion.

Activities opened at 11 o'clock in the morning when the girls registered and met for a general session of singing and an explanation of the camp routine for the day. The girls swam from 11:30 to 12:15 after which they lined up for lunch which was served picnic style by members of the camp committee of Appleton Girl Scout council. Unit meetings were held after lunch and at this time the campers filled out questionnaires concerning camp this year, planned skits for the campfire program, and reminisced about last year's camp experiences.

A basketball game between campers and staff members was a feature of the afternoon program. The staff members defeated their young opponents. Since the veteran campers arrived in the morning and had their swim early, the prospective campers had a swimming period in the afternoon while the veterans held a game session including volleyball, dodge ball and other active games.

A campfire program climaxed the day's activities when each unit put on a camp stunt, camp songs were sung and camp folders were distributed. Mrs. C. E. Saecker, camp chairman, gave an explanation of camp policies and procedures.

Activities of the day were supervised by Miss Dorothy Calnin assisted by the following leaders and camp counselors: Miss Daphne Vanderheyden, Miss Alice Cavert, Miss Faith Frampton, Miss Barbara Rounds, Miss Jean Lewis, Miss Jane Frank, Miss Mary Young, Miss Sansee Courtney and Miss Jeanne Nuoffer. ## HOLLYWOOD LIGHTS CAMERA ACTION HAPPENING

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Pictures are getting dirtier at the same time they are getting cleaner, for the movie bath seems to be going out. Right away you'll think of half a dozen baths you've seen in recent pictures to disprove that statement, but it's true nevertheless. The bath is in disfavor, the mar-a-dub-scrub cycle was waned. Ruth Dietrich bathed beautifully in "Knight Without Armour," and Judy Canova in "Artists and Models." The very first scene of "Paradise for Three" has a young lady bathing in a show-window and discreet showers pop up now and then to remind of the old days of bathing glory. For all that, the bathtub scene is passing from the screen.

Baths A Nuisance
And the film "purity code" has had little or nothing to do with the decline. For many years screen baths have been kept within the bounds of propriety, the bath being fully clad in a bathing suit under the soapsuds — and in a large drying towel when stepping out of them. It's merely that directors prefer to dodge the obvious difficulties that beset the movie bath. Plumbing has to be brought to the set, properly men have to heat great quantities of water (for the bath itself and probably for re-takes.) The cameraman has his troubles with light refracted from the water's surface, and the water must be made opaque regardless to conceal that portion of the bath under water and inside the bathing suit. There's a lot of bother and fuss, as evidenced in the bath taken by a young lady the other day for "Fools For Scandal," the Carole Lombard - Fernand Gravel movie.

Kay Took Shower
This bath's heroine is Lorraine Eddy MacLean, who answers a telephone while taking it. She is completely hidden, bathing suit

What's New at the Library

A good many newspaper people seem to be turning their hands to writing their own experiences and publishing them in book form. A new volume which is on order at Appleton Public library is "One American and His Attempts at Education" by Frazier Hunt, one time editor of a small mid-western town newspaper who seemed to have a "nose for news" and unusual hunches. He was once manager of a Mexican plantation, then reporter on the Western front, in Russia immediately after the armistice and before other reporters arrived, newspaper representative in China, Japan, India and Germany where he met and knew the present leaders before they became famous figures.

"An Eastern Odyssey" by Georges LeFevre, one of the new books at the library, describes the undertaking and adventure of the Citroen Trans-Asiatic expedition which left Beirut, Syria, in 1931, and which 10 months later reached Peking after spanning the continent of Asia for the first time by motor. Across 7,000 miles of desert wastes, windswept plateaus and snow-clad mountain passes, following the most ancient of trade routes to the east with the most modern of scientific expeditions, the author made notes as he went, and this book gives a complete scientific, pictorial and literary record of the territory traversed.

Having examined the writings and conclusions of authorities from Plato to Ignatius Donnelly to Lewis Spence, the author of "Lost Atlantis," James Bramwell, sets for the most recent findings and chief modern theories concerning the lost Atlantis, a traditional island in the west said to have been sunk by an earth quake. The tradition of Atlantis has stirred the imagination of men since Plato wrote his "Critias." Bramwell recognizes that for many the real value of Atlantis is a symbol of a Golden Age, an escape to a world of magic and romance.

premise that sometime in the near future, legislation on health insurance will be introduced into congress, the book is a frank plea for the necessity of including public health insurance in our federal social security program. The author is a trained economist who worked for 3 years on the research staff of the committee on the costs of medical care in connection with which he published four volumes dealing with public health.

How to get rid of the habit of worry and the discomfort it entails is told in the book, "In the Name of Common Sense" by Matthew N. Chappell. Its material is based on years of scientific research.

Why do you buy things you had no intention of buying, just because somebody was a good salesman? The volume, "Tested Sentences that Sell" by Elmer Wheeler, sales consultant for a number of prominent firms, shows how the slight twist of a phrase may make the difference between success and failure in selling. The author has tested thousands of word combinations and selling points on millions of customers at the point of sale, and puts down his findings in this book.

The lives of colorful figures of history have been the subject for several plays, biographies and historical novels, but now there has been published a volume of short plays designed for school production based on historical characters. The volume is "Plays of Belles and Beaux" by Olive Price. Among the characters appearing in the plays are the generous and sophisticated Beau Brummel, the dashing Jean Lafitte, gentler Wolfgang Mozart, flirtatious Dolly Madison, 18-year-old Joan of Arc at the French court, Jenny Lind and Marie Antoinette.

On order at the library is "So You're Going to Travel" by Clara E. Laughlin, author of the other "So You're Going" series. Practical, helpful information for successful travel is given herein, the author answering thousands of questions people have asked.

Club Asks Farmers' Cooperation to Rid The County of Crows

The Outagamie Conservation club today asked cooperation of farmers in the club's campaign to rid the county of crows.

George J. Puth, chairman of the committee in charge of the campaign, said 27 crow traps had been placed at various places in the county. ## Recommend WPA Work be Awarded On Basis of Bids

100 Building Trades Delegates Hold Meeting Here Saturday

A recommendation that WPA projects should be awarded to contractors on the basis of bids instead of being administered by local government was made at a meeting of 100 delegates from building trades councils in the Fox River valley at the Appleton Trades and Labor hall Saturday afternoon.

The men went on record as favoring the aims of the WPA program but believing that the projects should be given private contractors in competitive bidding as is the practice in other building.

Three delegates from each council represented at Saturday's meeting and Louis Butterfield, Sr., Green Bay, a member of the executive board of the state federation of labor, will go to Madison to confer with authorities on this matter. It was decided. Delegates from Appleton, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Manitowoc, DePere, Kaukauna, Little Chute, Neenah, Menasha, and New London were present.

Discussion of building trades matters in the various localities in the valley was held and reports given on the labor picture on building projects.

Butterfield, F. Bessaw, and Edward Matzke, Green Bay, and Harvey Zelmor, Oshkosh, were speakers at the meeting.

GOES TO CONVENTION
A. A. Glockzin, director of choral singing in Appleton public schools, left today for St. Louis where he will attend a national gathering of music supervisors. Glockzin will return to Appleton Saturday.

WICHMANN Furniture Company

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The Story So Far: The boxwood hedge surrounding Goodloe's Choice in the Maryland hunting district is a symbol and a sacred boundary. On the outside is Reuben Oliver whose self-made fortune is not enough to make him acceptable. On the inside is Judith Goodloe in love for years with dashing Gary Brent just home from abroad. Tea is being served in the garden.

A Promised Land

As from a distance Judith heard the Master of Hounds saying: "The pack must be weeded out. A new strain brought in."

Discussion followed. Judith watched Gary. Two years of hobnobbing with nobility and dancing attendance on titled beauties had added a flattering deference to his manner. At 26 Gary was—perfect. "Judith, can you care for a discarded hound?" Dick asked crisply.

She nodded mechanically.

Mr. Blout went on to other business: "Some members suggest new pink coats?"

"Heaven knows we need them. Ours look like the ones the British wore during the Revolution."

"Antiques are valuable."

"Why stir up an old war? Gary, what are they wearing in Kent and Suffolk?"

"Same old thing." He told of a Hunt Ball at Penshurst. Glamour surrounded him like a halo.

"There's no one like him—anywhere," Judith worshipped. He had something to tell her—

She started to create a brand new world that gained color from Gary's eyes; light from his smile; warmth from his laughter—

"Judith, kindly come back from Egypt or wherever you are!" Amanda shattered her dreaming. "Richard has spoken twice."

"I beg your pardon!" She was filled with flustered repentance.

"We want your vote on the Thanksgiving run and breakfast. We plan to have the latter here, as usual?"

"But of course!"

The Hunt's business went on. Like one listening to echoes from a mountain top, Judith heard the fixtures for the coming season arranged—

"First meet, Smith's five bar gate. Second, foot of Dark Hollow Hill. Thanksgiving breakfast at Goodloe's Choice, everyone to attend services at Old St. John's before the run — Next meet at Mantua Farm—"

"Why not Emerson's. Heiser's. McHenry's or Craddock's?" Some one asked if the date conflicted with the Harford Hounds?

Waiting

While the secretary called My Lady's Manor, Judith fumed inwardly.

Useless to tell herself their moment would be sweeter for the waiting. The whole of life would be too short to hold all the miracle of Gary's love — breath-taking in its scope—Gary's love.

She would live in his shabby old house behind the larches and

BY RANDY HASE
MENASHA—Four teams, St. Boniface of Manitowoc, St. John of Little Chute, St. Joseph and St. Mary of Appleton, entered the semifinals of the seventh annual Catholic grade school basketball tournament of the Green Bay diocese Sunday at St. Mary's gymnasium.

St. Boniface and St. John will tangle at 3:30 this afternoon while the two Appleton teams will meet at 4:30 for the right to go into the championship game. The championship finals will be played at 8:30 tonight and will be preceded at 7:30 by a game between the two losers this afternoon to determine the third place winner.

After the final game tonight, awards will be made to the winning teams and the all-tournament team will be named. Capacity crowds again watched the games Sunday.

St. Boniface, Manitowoc, eliminated St. Mark, Two Rivers, 21 to 15, in the quarterfinals of the tournament, holding Antoine to 9 points by putting two men on him. The St. Mark team, built entirely around the sharp-shooting Antoine, failed to take use of the man left free by the Manitowoc defense. Champagne, in addition to guiding the team play and helping guard Antoine, scored five baskets himself.

St. Boniface took an early lead running the advantage to 6 to 1, 10 to 5 and 16 to 5 during the first three quarters. Antoine cut loose for three baskets in the final period and Daffner counted two to cut the margin to 16 to 13 during the final period. Wolgram got three free throws and Staudt a

St. John's Boxers Lose Racine Match

Defeated 9 1-2 to 2 1-2 by St. Catherine's; Bumgart Takes His Fight

St. John's boxers of Little Chute were defeated 9 1/2 to 2 1/2 by St. Catherine's of Racine at that city Saturday night.

Paul Wiesner of St. Catherine's outpointed J. Winus of Little Chute in the 87-pound class. Both boys were throwing hard punches in the first round, but ended in a draw, but the Racine fighter was given the edge in the next two.

In a close match, Lawrence Ludwig of Racine won the decision from Jimmy Hermens, Little Chute, in the 87-pound bracket. Ken Hurst, St. John 110-pounder, could earn no better than a draw with Holsinger of Racine, although he did most of the leading.

Because of an injured thumb, Siebers was unable to come up for his 150-pound match and defaulted to Luciacin.

Bumgart of Little Chute almost knocked Theilen of Racine out in the 136-pound battle, but failed to follow up his advantage. He won by a wide margin.

Don Miller of St. Catherine's, who fought in the novice class in the Golden Gloves, won the decision from Les Helf of Little Chute in the 147-pound match.

Casey Stengel Likes His Post As Bees' Manager

But Old Hurlers, No .300 Hitters Make Outlook Dark

BY GAYLE TALBOT
BREADTON, FLA.—It's a tragic announcement to have to make, but Casey Stengel has joined up with the conservative Boston set and isn't funny any more.

The only comic crack he made in a half-hour's earnest conversation was that his Bees might win the National league pennant.

The man who used to wow them over in Brooklyn sits there now as dignified as a kid wearing his first stiff collar and Stengel insists upon discussing such trivial items as batting and fielding averages and pitching possibilities. He even made a point of having names pronounced correctly. Once he said, mistily:

"I can't tell you how much I appreciate the way these folks have treated me since I took over the club. I haven't got a lot of background like some managers."

He referred, no doubt, to such old line, rock-ribbed landed gentry as Burleigh Grimes, of the Missouri Grimses, and to Frankie Frisch, the Bronx boulevardier. In time, of course, Casey will learn that Burleigh and Frankie are just as democratic as anybody.

Sits In Dugout
During the Bees' exhibition games Casey doesn't even get out on the coaching lines, but sits back sedately in the dugout and makes motions just like Connie Mack, except that he doesn't use a score card yet. Only once in the course of a game did he go out and argue modestly with the base umpire. He said he was feeling all right, too.

Contributing to the new gravity undoubtedly is the fact that Casey is more or less on the spot in taking over the Bees after the miracles they performed under Bill McKechnie last year. With an old-folks pitching staff and not a 300 hitter in the line-up, they finished fifth.

Now Casey has the same club, except that it's a year older, and he's bound to feel the strain. If the Bees finish worse than fifth, Boston fans won't be pleased with Casey. And if they do finish as high as fifth again, this year, for one, will be greatly astonished.

Owner Robert Quinn doesn't appear to have come up with any help to speak of. Max West, a young outfielder who hit .331 for the Missions in the Coast league last year, is the only newcomer with a chance of breaking into the regular line-up. He might replace either Gene Moore or Roy Johnson.

Has Faith In Hurlers
The vital question is whether those two magnificent minor leaguers, Lou Fette and Jim Turner, can possibly have another such season last year, when each won 20 games. Casey thinks they can and will.

Further, Stengel looks for that other veteran, Dan MacFayden, to make a great comeback. Still another pitching graybeard, Milburn Shoffner, who joined the club late last season and won three out of four, figures big in Casey's calculations.

That air-tight infield that meant so much to Fette and Turner last year has had trouble this spring. Gilbert English, third baseman, has been out with a gash in his leg. Rabbit Warstler, scampering little shortstop, has a sprained back. Only tough Tony Cucinello has been able to play regularly at second. But they'll all be ready soon.

At Lopez will continue to do most of the catching, despite the fact his batting went all to pieces last year. Both Brooklyn and the Cardinals have tried to buy Lopez, but the Bees aren't selling anybody.

Spring Brings Out Best in Brownies

St. Louis Club, With Eight Wins, Is Leading Grapefruit League

New York—(P)—The spring that brings out the crocus and the robin also has brought out the St. Louis Browns. Perennial doormats of the American league, the Brownies are riding high in first place in the grapefruit circuit with a spotless record of eight straight victories.

The Yankees needn't be alarmed. The Browns have been beating Texas league teams. They have yet to play a major league ball club, but it's great, not to say surprising, while it lasts.

The New York Giants are in second place with 11 wins and 3 defeats, and are up in the firing against American league teams.

Thus far, the National holds a 27 to 20 edge in interleague combat. The Cincinnati Reds, who are fourth, lead in knocking over the American leaguers. The Reds have won six out of seven starts against junior circuit clubs. The Yanks have won six games from National league opponents, but they have lost five.

The Chicago Cubs rank third with seven victories in ten games, while Pittsburgh's Pirates are fifth.

3 CYO Champs Repeat At Wisconsin Rapids

Wisconsin Rapids—(P)—Three 1937 La Crosse diocesan CYO boxing champions repeated in the finals of the Wisconsin Rapids tournament last night. Three knockouts featured the card of eight bouts.

George Alberts, La Crosse, last year's middleweight fillet, won the light heavyweight title by a second round knockout over Emil Stusek of Chippewa Falls. The other repeaters were Harold Sullivan, lightweight, and Bob Bender, bantamweight, both of Wisconsin Rapids.

Wisconsin Rapids won the team district trophy. Chippewa Falls won the first parish award and George Alberts was named the most popular fighter. About 1,200 attended the finals.

Spirit of Spring Sends Golfers to 2 Local Courses

The spirit of spring, tra-la-la and a warm sun brought out a crop of Appleton golfers Sunday what would have done credit to almost any Sunday in May. Both Butte des Morts and the municipal course were a mess for the many who couldn't resist the urge and despite the fact there was no announcement that the fairways were dry and the greens in condition.

At Butte des Morts the second nine was in the best condition although the first nine will be ready in a few days. The first nine usually is hardest hit by spring floods. At the municipal course there were a few wet places but generally the course was in good shape.

Butte des Morts is expected to open officially next weekend unless rainy weather halts plans.

Perch Fishing Opens on May 15

First Closed Season Recommended by Sportsmen Last Year

Milwaukee — As southern Wisconsin waters become free of ice, hundreds who in past years have started perch fishing before the general season opening should be reminded that they cannot fish for perch in inland waters until May 15.

Until this year there was no closed season on perch. Last summer the 71 county game advisory board, meeting in Madison, recommended to the conservation department that perch be protected until the May 15 general opening date.

The reason advanced was that some fishermen had taken other protected species under the guise of perch fishing. Now a fisherman has no business on a lake with a fish pole before the general season.

This is the first year the May 15 perch opening has been in effect. The size limit on perch for this year has also been reduced from seven inches to six inches, but the bag limit is still 25 daily.

OPEN BULLHEAD SEASON

Madison — The state conservation commission has advanced the opening date for fishing for bullheads from May 15 to April 1 in Dane, Jefferson and Rock counties, and included a provision keeping the season open the year around. The limit is 30 each day, any size. In all other inland waters the open season for bullheads is from May 15 to March 1, with a bag limit of 30 each day and a size minimum of six inches. Petitions from fishermen in the three counties resulted in the change.

Hollywood, Calif.—The Chicago White Sox, minus Shortstop Luke Appling, who broke his leg Sunday, met Hollywood of the Pacific coast league today, with Bill Dietrich, Jess Doberner and George Glick getting mound duty.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York — (U.S.A.) — Stock market

leaders enjoyed buying support today and, at the best, favorites recovered fractions to a point or more.

Bids fell away in the final hour and extreme advances were cut down in many cases at the close.

There was also a handful of weak spots. Volume was largest on the morning runup, dwindling in the latter part of the session. Transfers were in the neighborhood of 1,250-

000 shares.

Steels were boosted on the official estimate placing this week's mill operations at 35.7 per cent of capacity, up 2 points at the highest mark since the middle of November.

Down 1 to 3 at the worst were

United States Smelting, American

Smelting, Howe Sound and American Metal, reflecting the treasury's discontinuance of purchases of silver from Mexico where the concerns have important mining interests.

On the rising side the greater part of the time were U. S. Steel,

Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber,

Westinghouse, Du Pont, American

Can, Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Western

Union, Anaconda, Kennecott,

Chesapeake and Ohio, Santa Fe,

Great Northern, Johns-Manville, J.

I. Case, Youngstown Sheet and

Tube and Oliver Farm.

Before Rallies

Chicago — (U.S.A.) — Buying of wheat futures at Winnipeg attributed to foreigners did much to make Chicago wheat prices today average higher.

Upturns of wheat values here,

however, came only after the market had touched the lowest levels in three years. Export purchases of North American wheat today as distinguished from futures were estimated as totaling only 300,000 bushels.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to 1 cent higher compared with Saturday's finish. May 86 1/2, July 82 1/2, corn 1

It Is Said--

That Richard Otte, Wilson street, has been having more than his share of bad luck lately. Several weeks ago what he thought was a dead furnace fire fooled him completely when he tossed kerosene upon it and he was painfully burned. Yesterday while some of the boys were breaking the Sunday afternoon monotony with a little ball throwing in front of his restaurant on Lawe street an errant pitch flew through his $45 front plate glass window.

Scouts Pass Tests On Hike to Woods

Holy Cross Organization Holds First Outing Of Season

Kaukauna — Holy Cross boy scouts made their first hike of the year yesterday afternoon to Rohan's woods. Tests passed were fire building, Jim McGowan; cooking, Robert Steinhoff and Boniface Pendergast; tracking, Jim Mulholland and Jerome Faust.

a beautiful dream from which she would awaken to find this lilac and spring green world just — heart-break—

"Thank fortune!" Dick leaned back in his chair. "With the season's schedule made, I can enjoy a cup of your excellent tea, Amanda."

Mrs. Goodloe smiled at her old friend and signalled Amos, "Hungry, Judy?"

"Starved!"

"There's nothing in England half so heavenly as your tea hour, Gran." Gary's eyes flashed a message to Judith.

Judith's grandmother, pouring amber liquid into pink cups, caught it. In a world gone topsy-turvy, it was comforting to know that Judith, at least, was living up to old traditions—falling in love with the right man at the right time. It would be like old times to have a wedding at Goodloe's Choice. The house filled with guests—

"Expensive—" The thought crawled like a black serpent across her mind. To banish it she called attention to the cool green and white cucumber sandwiches.

Merrily the tea hour went on. Additional guests dropped in. Talk fell into pleasant lines—Someone wanted to know if there would be time for a swim before dinner.

"Plenty of time," Judith answered quickly. Here was the chance she awaited. She tried to catch Gary's eye. In deep discussion of the respective merits of the Meadowbrook and Piedmont hounds, he did not notice.

Unattainable As The Moon

She must curb her impatience. Hard, when one has waited two years before closed gates, then suddenly sees the latch lift, seems them open slightly, giving a tantalizing glimpse of a paradise beyond—

One minute, two, three—a lifetime to Judy—licked into eternity. "If only Gary would look—"

She was not alone in her longing to enter a promised land. Outside the hedge Reuben raised in his stirrups, peered over, sought for and found one who for weeks had cast an alluring shadow upon the screen of his imagination—straight as an Indian, lithe as a reed, unattainable as the moon—Judith Goodloe.

Sun and shade made little patches of light and shadow upon her vivid, gypsy face and wind-blown hair. Upon lawns, garden and the riot of flowers that crowded the borders. He saw them all merely as a background for her loveliness.

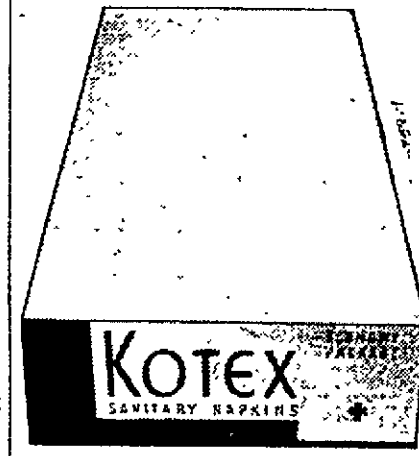

Lilacs and mock orange blossoms sent out heady sweetness. Wicker chairs, splashed with gay cretonne, invited leisure and laughter—Judith's lilting laughter.

Unconsciously Reuben urged his horse a step nearer, drawn, against his will, as steel to magnet.

Clank of ice. Clatter of silver against china. Drift of voices—in the background, magnificent in its grove of trees, the old house, ivy-grown—spacious — Reuben Oliver felt its dignity, its peace, its cheerfulness. Bed geraniums and gay petunias spilled from window boxes. Wide striped awnings covered terraces and verandas. On the stone steps that led to the lower level a peacock strutted and, in the midst of it all—one slip of a girl utterly beyond the reach of the man outside of the hedge.

He made rather a distinguished picture in the shaded greenness. He had a victor's head. A face that had the charm of strength and not too regular features. His seat upon the big gray gelding was not so firm as the line of his jaw and chin. He was one of those, so scorned by Amanda-Goodloe, who were "learning to ride."

Studying Amanda's face, a hint of amusement upon his own, Reuben wondered what his life would have been, reared by such a woman in such a place? Intent, he did not hear the light tread of a hunter upon the soft, long grass. (Copyright, 1938)

Tomorrow: Reuben crashes in.
